"Clara Parker, February 7th: lost at Astoria.

This is a mistake. No vessel, steam or sail, was lost at Astoria or any-where near Astoria, and there was no marine mishap at Astoria or in this vicinity meriting more than the briefest chronicle.

The record of the Columbia bar and river for '86 and '87 is a proud one, and with the exception of the burning of the Telephone in the river, which cannot be considered a "ma-rine mishap," in the general acceptation of that term, the record of this section in that regard is a clear one.

A Novel Wager and How it Was Won-

At the Hoffman House on a recent night a party sat at a table in the art gallery making wagers, each on his own particular trick. A young broker, who spent last summer with his grandmother in Jersey, won a pocketful of greenbacks on a trick taught him by the good old lady. He had lost considerable money on catch bets, when he offered to wager any one in the party that he could eat more eggs than any other three men present, providing he was permitted to have the last turn. A doctor, a coroner and a bank teller took the bet. After a brief discussion the three gentlemen decided to sion the three gentlemen decided to tackle fried eggs. Terrible Accident on the Canadian Pacific.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 6 .- Canadian Pacific passengers, arrived from the west to-day, describe Wednesday's accident at Middleton. Two freight trains met on a trestle eighty feet high, between 1 and 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. The engine of the westbound train became fastened in the trestle-work, and stuck there, while the tender and several cars jumped over the top and went to the bottom. The engine coming from the east went through the trestle immediately after the collision, and took down a number of freight cars.

Two engineer, one fireman and one brakeman were killed outright. One man lodged under the wreck-age was noticed to be alive, and one of his comrades undertook to remove him by grasping his hand. The res-cuer was horrified when he broke the man's fingers, which had been frozen while in this deplorable position. Another man was seen underneath the wreck, all his body being visible except the head, which was horribly mangled.

Nobody seemed to know the cause of the accident. It was thought the men had been too long on the train going east and had fallen asleep.
